

Infection transmission typically occurs through direct contact of the piercing site with contaminated water.

The secret family recipe lacked a certain clinical rigor.