

Patients typically delay seeking medical care for an extended period following the initial onset of symptoms.
Denial requires an ever-expanding wardrobe.