

Advanced lasers delivering ultra-short pulses allow clinicians to use far lower energy while minimizing heat diffusion.

The master applies such minimal force that he simply bows to the ink and politely requests its immediate departure.