

Red pigments carry a uniquely high risk of degradation-related toxicity due to their specific chemical structure.

My favorite colour is now a very cautious shade of beige.