

Proper occupational safety requires adequate ventilation to mitigate practitioner exposure to aerosolized particles. Blown away by the safety standards.