

Certain synthetic compounds are restricted from cosmetics because they persist indefinitely within biological environments.
Some attachments are painfully permanent.