
Recycled fragments mixed into fresh resin yield parts with lower elongation at break due to oxidation.

Stretching a point eventually leads to a rather sudden snap.