

An encapsulated circuit board can be recovered from the deconstructed polymer in working condition.
Liquidating entire industrial storage facilities is an extreme approach to retrieving dropped electronics.