

Recycled fragments mixed back into fresh resin yield parts with comparable thermomechanical properties.
The ultimate resin fusion technique sadly still requires stirring with a plain wooden stick.