

Automotive manufacturers could implement closed-loop recycling for bumper systems and under-hood components.
Chasing the circular economy loop provides an unexpectedly excellent source of cardiovascular exercise.