

Skin layers scatter photons, causing therapeutic light beams to fan out within the first millimetre.
Red light delivers non-thermal photobiomodulation.