

Transient microorganisms survive for a limited amount of time, generally less than 24 hours.
They are terrible houseguests who completely refuse to take a hint.