

The United States lacks any federal regulatory framework for tattoo ink composition.
The building inspector was only ever looking for a working sink.