Northern Ireland remains effectively inside the European chemical regulatory framework despite the broader departure of the United Kingdom.

Keeping a foot in both realms requires incredible balance and exceptionally stretchy trousers.