

Ink manufacturers are required to rigorously screen their formulations for precursor chemicals that ultimately degrade into persistent acids.

The confession is taking far longer than expected.