

Respect for spiritual tradition provides no exemption from the necessity of clean procedure and proper infection control.

The ancient spirits cared deeply about lineage but offered absolutely no assistance with cross-contamination.