

Cartilage requires vastly extended healing periods because it relies entirely on diffusion rather than blood flow.
Blowing on a diffusion process demonstrates profound biological misunderstanding.