

Upper torso areas carry an elevated risk of abnormal scar tissue overgrowth compared to earlobes.
Spontaneous mountain generation is an unintended bonus feature.