

Piercings placed deeply into the hypodermis migrate due to a lack of structural collagen. The implant decided it was time to see the world.