

An epidermal wound does not bleed because the outermost skin layer contains no blood vessels. The ultimate technique yields entirely anticlimactic results.