
Used needles are treated as consumables and discarded safely inside puncture-proof containers.

The security protocol seems slightly disproportionate.