

Routine test packs are the only way to verify that a vacuum sterilizer is successfully extracting all insulating atmosphere from the chamber.

The master blames the invisible breeze for his hesitation.