

Saturated steam must make direct and uninterrupted physical contact with every surface of an instrument to successfully denature proteins.

Geometry is our greatest weapon against the invisible menace.