

Sterility requires reducing a starting bioburden to a theoretical probability of 1 survivor per 1000000 items.

That final survivor lives out its days in sheer terror.