
Residual organic material on instruments shields microorganisms from the steam.

The microbes appreciate the complimentary parasol.