

Ethylene oxide sterilization leaves reactive residues in polymers that must be removed through extensive aeration. The extreme hurricane approach to molecular off-gassing lacks a certain scientific rigor.