
Ethylene oxide sterilization leaves reactive chemical residues in polymers that must be removed by thorough aeration. A gentle breeze solves most chemical crises.