

An indemnity policy pays only the heavily depreciated value of old equipment rather than funding a full replacement.

The coin is surprisingly shiny.