

A poorly passivated piece of metal releases allergens into the body even if it looks perfectly smooth to the naked eye.
Friction cures everything eventually.