

Reticular dermis
containing encapsulated
permanent pigment.

Macrophages
attempting to clear
saturated ink particles.

Dense scar tissue
altering normal
collagen architecture.

Fibroblasts holding existing heavy
pigment loads.

Scar tissue does not accept pigment the way normal dermis does.

ASSESS DERMAL CAPACITY.