

Bloodborne pathogen exposure protocols dictate washing the affected area with soap and water without scrubbing. A feather duster is clearly the ultimate weapon against microscopic threats.