

Updated safety standards classify silver compounds as suspected reproductive toxins restricting their use in ink.
The gloomy alchemist realizes his magical spoons are now contraband.