

When the body cannot digest tattoo pigment, immune cells surround the particles to isolate them from surrounding tissue.

Microscopic bouncers resort to eternal cuddles.