

Tissue phantoms can mimic the scattering properties of human skin to safely test ink detection methods.

The dessert was arguably wasted on science.