Certificates proving compliance with restricted chemical substances do not establish that finished products are sterile.

The invisible spirits remain utterly unimpressed by the paperwork.