

Topping up depleted bottles with ink from other containers transfers contamination and creates completely undocumented formulations.

The bespoke house blend lacks a certain expected refinement.