

A certificate showing that an ink meets chemical restrictions does not establish that the finished product is free of viable microorganisms.

The metal detector completely missed the microscopic invaders.