A certificate showing that an ink meets REACH restrictions does not establish that the finished product is free of viable microorganisms.

Heavy metal compliance brings absolutely zero comfort to a thriving colony of pathogens.