The usable unit of control for a recall is not a brand or a colour, but the specific product and lot.

Throwing out every black bottle in the shop is certainly one way to assert dominance over inventory.