

Tattoo inks bypass the primary physical barrier against pathogens by being inserted below the epidermis.

The front door was locked anyway.