

Tattoo inks bypass the main physical barrier against pathogens because they are inserted below the outer layer of skin.

Plate armour remains largely ineffective against floral nose designs.