

Federal inspectors may not access records related to product recipes or formulas during routine facility inspections.
Eating secret formulas remains an excessive overreaction to standard regulatory boundaries.