

Copper phthalocyanine pigments produce blue and green tones and show no meaningful dermal migration or degradation.
You will crumble to dust long before your emerald dolphin does.