

Residual alcohol carriers left in the dermis evaporate quickly but can significantly prolong the inflammatory phase of healing.
Sometimes the quickest exit leaves the biggest mess behind.