

Heavy metal restrictions apply to every individual component of jewelry rather than averaging content across the entire item.

The devil is in the details but the compliance inspector lives in the clasp