

When testing jewelry for restricted heavy metals, any failing component causes the entire piece to fail.
The regulatory stamp proved surprisingly hypoallergenic