

"Cartridge systems contain safety membranes that prevent ink and biological fluids from flowing backward into the machine mechanism."
The citadel gates remain impenetrable.