
The membrane holds.
Cartridge needles contain built-in safety membranes to prevent fluids from flowing backward into the machine.

No backflow today.
The vault remains secure against the midnight tide.