

Immune cells in the dermis continuously capture and recapture tattoo pigment to keep the design permanently visible.

The generational wealth of ink is safely inherited.