

Traditional physical abrasion methods attempt to eliminate unwanted pigment by forcefully scraping away the skin itself. Sanding the canvas removes the painting.